“Life as a voyage, travel as a lifestyle.”

“Surely all Japanese houses look humble to people who regard ostentation a civic virtue.”

“Coloration and ornament are chiefly [stimulants to sexual selection].”

“There is no proper need of sex, unless we regard sexual selection or sexual pleasure as

“We live in a shrinking world. Traditions are withering fast, customs are being displaced.”

“Wearing tight-fitting apparel has not only deformed our body, but has obscured our knowledge of them.”

“(The older generation) depends upon age and shoe size;...}[nothing happens]. Can't you answer to the fashions of the mechanical factory?”

“I believe that in the arts and in architecture, the sensual pleasures should come before the intellectual ones.”

Mind (Garden City, New York, 1965) Modern?”