PERFORMANCE AT THE GETTY VILLA

The Getty Villa’s public programs are designed to amplify and enhance the Museum visitor’s insight into the people and cultures of the ancient Mediterranean world. Throughout the year, the Villa presents an engaging spectrum of events, anchored by its innovative theater program.

The Villa Theater Lab series fosters the work of artists employing creative, often experimental approaches to the performance of ancient stories. The Villa Auditorium’s range of technologies have enabled teams of both newly emerging and long distinguished artists—directors, designers, musicians, playwrights, and actors—to freely incorporate advanced stage, sound, and visual elements into productions developed in residence here at the Villa.

Each September a major production is commissioned and presented in the Barbara and Lawrence Fleischman Theater, an outdoor performance space based on ancient prototypes. In 2019 director and playwright Aaron Posner, winner of the Helen Hayes and Barrymore awards, directs The Heal, his adaptation of Sophocles’s Philoctetes.

From autumn through spring, the Villa’s public programming also includes music and film screenings. To receive information about Getty Museum exhibitions, performances, and lecture events, please subscribe to the monthly e-Getty newsletter at getty.edu/subscribe.
Upcoming Villa Public Program

The Oedipus/Antigone Project - Villa Theater Lab
Lionel Popkin
Friday, March 8, 2019; 7:30 p.m.
Saturday, March 9, 2019; 3:00 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.
Sunday, March 10, 2019; 3:00 p.m.
Tickets: $7

Choreographer Lionel Popkin’s new evening-length choreo-play is inspired by the gap between two of Sophocles’ best known plays, Oedipus Rex and Oedipus at Colonus. The multimedia performance follows Oedipus and Antigone traveling between lands and between plays to question contemporary notions of displacement, exile, and homeland.

Creators’ Notes

katabasis (‘descent to the underworld’) is a ritual journey through the realm of death, inspired by ancient mystery rites. Little is known about the specific content of the secretive rituals that this performance emulates, which sought to endow participants with exclusive insight to navigate the afterlife and enlighten their remaining time on earth. We can reasonably conclude that they involved music, travel, initiatory rites, and performative reenactment, further dissolving the line between religious and performance practice in the Greek world. They ranged from the public initiation journey to Eleusis to chronicle the seasonal rebirth of Persephone, to less mainstream rituals which traced the trail of Orpheus or Dionysus. Their content was tailored to specific local interests and spiritual concerns. To that end, we have curated a selection of narratives and characters whose perspectives are most useful for our collective expedition.

In our third creative development at the Getty Villa, we continue to investigate the relationship between performance and ritual, and the relevance of these mythic narratives to contemporary ethical concerns. We’re emphatically grateful to the Getty Villa for the opportunity to use the whole of their glorious grounds to map out the geography of Hades and activate our ritual procession in a wild experiment that we’re thrilled to share with you. Welcome initiates.

“Now you have died and now you have come into being, O thrice happy one, on this same day. Tell Persephone that the Bacchic One himself released you.”
